

Concept

Intangible cultural heritage, also known as “living heritage” or “living culture”, refers to living practices, representations, expressions, knowledge and skills passed down from generation to generation. This heritage provides communities with a sense of identity and is continuously recreated in response to their environment, their interaction with nature and their history. It is called intangible because its existence and recognition depend mainly on the human knowledge and will, which is immaterial, and it is transmitted by imitation and living experience.

The 2019 Summer School of the UNESCO Chair at USI is dedicated to investigating how ICTs designed to enhance the tourism experience can help in preserving and transmitting living heritage. Val Müstair, with its richness of tangible and intangible heritage, will provide a suggestive background as well as an ideal case study.

In addition, participants will have the great opportunity to take part in the MEM Summer Forum, a high-level event organized in Lugano, which brings together top-tier speakers with leaders of tomorrow, aiming at promoting dialogue about the recent developments and persisting problems in Mediterranean and Middle Eastern countries.

Panel, lectures, visits to UNESCO World Heritage Sites, experience of local traditions, hands-on exercises and a range of formal and informal activities will allow participants to understand how to leverage ICTs for a sustainable tourism that is able to preserve and transmit living heritage.

A certificate of participation, including the detailed program and list of speakers is issued at the end of the School. The Summer School does not grant ECTS, but academic institutions might recognize ECTS upon presentation of this certificate.

Location

Müstair: is a town located in Canton Graubünden, Switzerland, close to the Swiss-Italian border in South Tyrol and to the Swiss-Austrian border at Nauders. It is home to the Convent of St. John, which was built by Charles the Great and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site (1983). The valley where it lies is part of the UNESCO Biosfera Engiadina Val Müstair, which is a largely intact natural landscape whose forestry and tourism industries are based on sustainability criteria.

Lugano: is a city in southern Switzerland in the Italian-speaking canton of Ticino bordering Italy. It lies on Lake Ceresio, surrounded by the mountains. It is home to USI – Università della Svizzera italiana, the most international university in Switzerland.

Organizers

The UNESCO Chair in ICT to develop and promote sustainable tourism in World Heritage Sites at USI – Università della Svizzera italiana (Switzerland) is committed to perform extensive research and teaching on how ICT can be effectively exploited to develop and promote sustainable tourism at WHSs as well as to preserve and transmit living heritage.

The MEM Summer Forum is organized by USI's Middle East Mediterranean (MEM) Freethinking Platform, which has been conceived to fulfil the function of linking different research entities and existent skills, both at international and local level. It aims at encouraging the analysis and debate on what happens in the MEM region, taking into account the global geopolitics equilibria.
